TREBLE CLEF CLUB GIVES CONCERT

[By Gazette Correspondent.]

Milton, Wis., Feb. 28.—On Wednesday night there occurred the best concert that the Treble Clef club of Milton college has ever given. The program was made up of folk songs and folk dances which lent charming variety to the evening. The songs represented the feelings of many people. There were Italian boat songs, and Russian melodies, gay little songs of the Danubians, characteristic Scotch, Irish and English ditties, boisterous sailor jigs, negro spirituals and songs based on American Indian melodies. The comparison and contrast in these selections were very interesting.

The dances were vivid and full of life. There was the Irish jig, the Highland Fling, the Sailor's Hornpipe, the Swedish Olen dance, and the statey Virginia Reel. A good program will be given. The evening will be there and bring the boy along.

BABY'S FOOTPRINTS TO HELP IDENTIFY IT IF CINCINNATI HOSPITAL PLAN IS USED

Miss Maude Roach making baby's first "footprint on the sands of time."

At the Cincinnati foundlings asylum there has been inaugurated the plan of extending the Bertillon system of measurement taking to include the taking of baby's footprints as soon as it enters the asylum. Marvelous as it may seem the tiny feet of all babies, while looking just about alike, vary some way in the lines across the little red soles. Prints taken of the feet, officials realize, will prevent accidental exchange of babies left in wards. The idea may be taken up by other hospitals.

For the Young People

AN UNINVITED GUEST

COME on, Charlie!" called Virginia. "I'm going over to Mergan's now!"

She took Bobolink's bridle down and then she noticed how queerly the pony was acting. "Charlie!" she called, hearing a noise. "Quit your fooling. I hear you up there in the loft!"

Rustle, rustle! Thud, thud! Bobolink tossed his head and rolled his eyes. Was that Brother Charlie in the loft? Virginia looked up and then her heart stood still, for she saw a big black shaggy foot with long sharp claws, on the top rung of the ladder. You should have seen Virginia run! She bumped into her brother in the yard.

"For the love o' Mike!" he cried. "What's up?"

"There's a-a-animal in the b-b-barn!" panted Virginia. "It has black feet and claws."

"Oh, I say!" Charlie replied. "You're seeing things. You're scared because Mom and Dad are away."

Up scrambled the children while the bear said "Woof!" and slapped the air with his big paws.

Charlie ran and got a rope, tied one end with a "square knot" to a rafter and threw the other end out of the little window in the loft. "We'll have to slide down and get into the house," he said.

Virginia was a plucky girl and she did not care to stay with the black bear, so she managed to slide down the rope to the ground although she skinned her hands. Charlie then slid down just in time because the bear was coming up the ladder puffing and blowing like a fat old gentleman. As the children peached the house, they saw the black bear squeeze out of the window and come sliding down the rope after them and you may be sure they ran in and bolted the door.

Virginia ran to the telephone while Charlie rescued their pet cat who was crying at the pantry window.

"I'm going to call up the Cloyers—that's where Mom and Dad are," Virginia said. "Hello! Hello! Who is this? Oh, Nancy. Is my Mom and Dad there? No? Oh, dear! Where did they go? Out driving in your new auto? Mercy me! Why yes, there's a big black bear in our back yard and it growled and chased us. Please tell Dad as soon as he gets back. Goodbye."

"I'll lock up the house tight and wait till somebody comes," said Charlie smoothing down Puss' fluffed-up back. "Don't be scared."

But he was scared himself when he remembered that the front window the little low closet where the pots were kept to get out a double boiler for the hominy when Charlie suddenly gave her a push from behind. She tumbled down among the pots and pans and Charlie squeezed in after her calling: "Here, Puss!"

The cat sprang into the closet with the children and Charlie slammed the door shut.

"Oh, Virgie," he said, "the bear is in the kitchen. He came in by the cellar door, which we forgot to lock!"

They sat as still as two mice listening to the bear rummaging around. Then they heard a "Woof! Woof! Snuff, snuff!" and "Scratch, scratch!"

"Gracious!" screamed Virginia. "It's trying to get in here!"

Sure enough! He was. There was no knob on the inside of the cupboard

Charlie Suddenly Gave Her A Push From Behind

upstairs over the porch was unlocked and open.

"Oh, Charlie!" Virginia cried. "I hear a noise upstairs!"

"I bet the bear has gotten in the window," Charlie replied. "Let's look ourselves in the kitchen!"

They looked the doors leading to the pantry and to the dining room, but they forgot the cellar door, so excited they were. "Now, we're safe!" Virginia said and they stood listening.

All was still upstairs and down. "I might not see some hominy for supper!" said Virginia, who was a practical little soul. She had just opened door and no way to hold it shut. In a moment the bear would have the catch off and the children would be at his mercy. Just then there was a loud rapping at the kitchen door.

The bear paused, snorted and then scampered away. Charlie hurried out of his retreat and opened the back door. There stood a dark short man with black curly hair, who doffed his hat and said: "You crotts do bear!"

"Yes, yes," replied Charlie. "He's in the house. Won't you please take him away?"

"Heem vern bad," said the man. "Come out, Virgie!" called Charlie.

"This man owns the bear and I guess it's a tame one anyhow."

Out she came, drying her eyes for she had had a bad fright.

They followed the man down the cellar, where the bear sat on a barrel feasting on pickled peaches.

"Garibadi!" shouted the owner. "I shamed, of you! Come hither!"

The bear obeyed quite meekly, shaking his comical head from side to side. He seemed very tame and as the man carried a hand organ the children decided he must be a trick bear.

"I vera hungry," the man said, smiling and showing his fine white teeth. "I'll make you tea," Virginia said. "Come up to the kitchen."

Down they all sat around the kitchen table to tea, jam and bread and butter and cookies. Charlie and Virginia opposite each other with the bear and the organ grinder at either side. The man said that his bear could dance and they had been going around to fairs and had done very well. It was thus the parents found them when they returned home.

The mother could say was, "My lands!"

But when she went upstairs and found that the bear had tried all the beds leaving his big foot prints and black hairs on the spreads, and when she peeped into her pantry and found the melasses jar upset and her apple pie eaten, she remarked:

"Well, I'm sure that fellow is a relation of Goldie Locks' Three Bears!"

Virginia and Charlie, however, were very much pleased with Garibaldi, who danced for them after supper and after promising to call again bear and master departed on their travels.

THE JUNIOR COOK

CORN BREAD

Measure out:
2 tablespoonsful shortening (lard or oil)
2 tablespoonsful sugar
1 teaspoonful salt

Put these materials in a bowl.
Drop in 1 egg (crack the shell and drop in the whole egg without dividing the white and yolk.)

Beat these all together till creamy. Add 1 pint (2 cups) of buttermilk (sour milk will do), into which you have dissolved 1 teaspoonful of soda.

Add 2 cups of cornmeal and 1 cup of flour into which you have sifted

1 teaspoonful of baking powder. Beat all together till a smooth, rather thin dough is formed, then Pour into a large, well greased pan and bake 20 minutes.

If the pan is greased in meat drippings instead of oil or lard the crust will have a delicious taste.

TOYS AND USEFUL ARTICLES THAT A BOY CAN MAKE.

BY FRANK I. SOLER

INSTRUCTOR, DEPT. OF MANUAL TRAINING, PUBLIC SCHOOLS OF DETROIT

do good work easily and rapidly, a workman be he man or boy, must have tools and they should be good ones. Tools are designed for certain purposes and they should be used accordingly. Too often one sees a worker using a tool for a purpose for which it was never intended. Such instances are, of course, due to a lack of understanding of the tools and their uses.

To assist those not in a position to secure the information elsewhere, and to correct some possible faults in those who think they understand thoroughly, a series of articles will be presented in these columns giving a brief explanation of the common tools and their use, as applied especially to bench work. The first article, presented herewith, will describe what are known as the LAYING-OUT TOOLS.

Rules come in quite a variety of forms, but the ones illustrated are perhaps used more than any others. The one foot steel rule is a very convenient one to have on the bench for small work and because of its thinness, measurements can be laid off along its edge very accurately. In using a thick rule for making a number of measurements with one setting, it should be placed on edge so the graduations on the rule will be brought close to the work. The two foot, four fold rule is very convenient because it folds compactly and can easily be carried in the pocket. This rule has a greater capacity than the one first mentioned, but when folded, occupies less space lengthwise than the other.

Work that does not require great accuracy in its performance may be marked out with a pencil, the point of which should be kept sharp. Where great accuracy is required, as in laying out joints, a sharp knife is essential. Two forms are illustrated. The Sloyd knife is very convenient as a part of the regular bench equipment, but it cannot be carried around in the pocket. If it is desired to have a knife that will answer all purposes, a good jack-knife is recommended. BUT KEEP IT SHARP!

The try-square is essential for testing pieces of stock for squareness, that is, to see if adjacent sides are at right angles to each other. It is also used to lay out lines that are drawn across the grain of the wood, and for testing a piece of stock to see if it is the same thickness or width throughout its length. To keep a try-square in perfect condition, it must be handled carefully. DO NOT USE IT AS A HAMMER! The framing square is much larger than the try-square and is used mostly by carpenters in framing work for building construction, but it is very convenient to have in the shop for work that is too large for the try-square.

The bevel is similar to the try-square. Unlike it, however, it has a movable blade that can be fastened in any position. It is used for laying out and testing angles, just as the try-square is used for laying out and testing right angles.

The marking gauge is used for laying out lines along the grain of a piece of wood. The head moves along the beam and can be fastened in any desired position. As received from the factory, the spur is set accurately with reference to the graduations on the beam, but it is not likely to long remain so. To insure accuracy, the rule should be used to check each setting. Some workmen plane off the graduations, thus removing any temptation to be guided by them.

To lay out arcs and circles the compass or dividers are used. Both legs of the dividers are metal, while one leg of the compass holds a pencil. The compass can be used for a great deal of work, but where it is desired to lay out anything accurately, the dividers should be used.

WEENTY GOES A-NUTTING

ELL," said Uncle Bert, "here we are."

The children—there were four of them—clapped their hands delightedly. Each child had a bag. Eddie and Jim's were quite large. Just like Uncle Bert's Polly's was smaller because she was a girl and girls can't carry so much, and there was a very little bag for Weenty to suit her little self.

They were in the woods and all about them the tall trees seemed to go right up into the sky. The trees were chestnut trees and as you must have already guessed, the party were out to gather the nuts.

"Now Eddie, as you're the biggest I'll boost you up into the tree," Uncle Bert said. "and Polly can gather up the burrs—be careful of your fingers, too. Polly—Jim and I will open them, eh, Jim?"

"And Weenty?" asked four voices at once. Uncle Bert looked at Weenty who stood waiting to hear what she should do.

"Dear me!" Uncle Bert cried, "what an oversight! Well, well, Weenty will have to be the lady of our party. I'm afraid she couldn't ever climb up a tree, and the burrs are so sticky—" quite like porcupines—and I'm most afraid she could never open them, either. But I tell you! Weenty can keep the squirrels off the rascals! We'll make away with everything we have if somebody doesn't watch after them."

Of course, Uncle Bert was only joking, and Eddie and Polly and Jim laughed merrily at his joke. But little Weenty nodded her head till her curls bobbed.

"There's one this minute!" she cried as she espied two bright eyes peering unseen.

"What! That old farmer's dog again! Chippy, you must be more careful and keep up on the trees. I'll keep on the trees!" Mr. Chippy asked.

Well, Weenty found a flat stone was over half of the hole and she managed to pull it away. It made a place big enough to put her head in and there was a little ray of light coming from a chink in the darkness.

She put her finger in the crack and from a funny furry face behind a tree stump.

"Now, don't you chase them too far," Uncle Bert called as she ran towards the stump. "You might get lost. Now Captain Eddie, let's see how nimbly you can climb my shoulders!"

Up went Eddie, down came the burrs. Polly took them up with bits of twigs much to the amusement of the others, and soon Uncle Bert and Mr. Chippy, "the thing that chased me." And he jumped up in an awful flurry.

Mrs. Chippy, however, did not seem a bit disturbed.

"Why, stupid," she cried, "that's a little girl! I saw lots of them when I lived in the city park. They gave me peanuts and never hurt me. I shouldn't wonder at all but that she chased you to give you some."

"Excuse me," said Weenty then, speaking in the slightest voice she could. "I haven't any nuts just now but I'll bring you some, and I'm very glad you're not scared of me."

"My!" said Mr. Chippy, "It talks!"

He stood in front of the three little beds. "Don't come in," he said.

"I couldn't anyway, Mr. Chippy. I'm much too big, even if I were invited. Did you really live in the park, Mrs. Chippy?"

"Yes, indeed, and very friendly with all the children I was." Mrs. Chippy answered. "But Mr. Chippy has always lived in the country, so you must excuse his manners. In the city we had so many nuts that the good children brought us we could hardly store them all but here we have to gather them ourselves for winter. Mr. Chippy is ever so busy all day. See, here is my pantry."

She opened a little door and there was a tiny cupboard with a neat pile of nuts already in it.

"Mr. Chippy is a good provider," said Mrs. Chippy.

"Yes I am," Mr. Chippy agreed quite proudly. "And yesterday I saved Mrs. Chippy and Anna, Frederick and Mary's lives."

"Really?" Weenty asked, "what happened?"

"No, you could never guess," and Mr. Chippy looked very mysterious. Mrs. Chippy told.

"A porcupine came here and started to dig down our door. O, I was frightened. He would have eaten up Anna and Frederick and Mary and I haven't a ghost of a doubt."

"Goodness!" Weenty exclaimed. "And he had his great nose just where you have your nose this minute?" Mr. Chippy said, "when I took my trusty hawthorn club and hit him right on it."

"Yes," Mrs. Chippy put in, "and he took it away quick enough you may believe, but he was terribly angry and said he would come back again."

"He's just full of spines," Mr. Chippy said.

I Took My Trusty Club And Hit Him On The Nose

rel." She meant a porcupine, but she was afraid Eddie would laugh if she said so.

"So you've been making friends with the squirrels, have you?" Uncle Bert asked. "Well, I suppose it's just as good, isn't it? And if we come into their woods to get nuts it's only fair to give them some I'm sure."

"Here's a handful from my bag."

"And mine," said Eddie, Polly and Jim. "And an extra offering for Weenty to give," said Uncle Bert with another handful.

"And another," said Eddie, Polly and Jim again. "I guess the country squirrel will like us as well as the park ones soon," Weenty said, which was quite true for kindness and generosity are sure to make friends everywhere.

py said, "and if he once touched you he'd prick—O, how he'd prick!"

Just then Weenty felt a tremendous prick on her leg.

"O-o-o-o-o!" she cried, "he's here now. O-o-o, and he's putting his spines in me! And out of the hole she pulled her head in time to see Uncle Bert, Eddie, Polly and Jim come running toward her."

"What's up?" Uncle Bert cried. "What's the matter with our poor little Weenty?"

"A porcupine," Weenty began, when Eddie gave a great laugh.

"It's a burr," he said, "see, here it is. You must have rolled on it. You've been sleeping, again, Miss Drowsy Eyes!"

"No," Weenty said, "I really did see some squirrels, they're in here, and O, Uncle Bert, do let me have some nuts to give them, won't you please?"

Then I'll fix this stone nice and tight so nothing can get in bigger'n a squirrel.

 Community Betterments to which this Newspaper is Pledged.
 An adequate and modern hotel.
 A community building containing an auditorium, woman's rest room, and memorial hall for soldiers, sailors and nurses.
 Traffic regulations which will reduce danger on streets to the minimum.
 A street car service which will answer the needs of an increasing population.
 Improved streets in the city and better roads in the country.
 A survey of the housing situation with a view of discouraging exorbitant rentals for both rooms and houses.
 Careful appraisal of property, particularly that of those who have increased their rents, so that they may pay their fair share of the taxes.
 A livestock pavilion at the fair grounds to be used in promoting the county's endeavor to take first place in the state as a stock producing center.
 An indoor recreation center in which dance and sporting events may be held.
 More parks and playgrounds for use of the entire community.
 Protected ice-skating rinks for children.

FOR A LARGER CONGRESS.
 We must disagree with the Oshkosh Northwestern that the next congress which will be based on the new census, should be smaller in number. The House of Representatives is the closest branch of the national government to the people. It should be just what the constitution terms it, representative of the people. For that purpose the states are divided into districts and after each census a new arrangement is made.
 There never should be a curtailment of the number of congressmen. Most of the work is done in committees. Each congressman has many requests for service, information, little things, from the many people he represents, errands that take time, and most every congressman is pleased to do these things. He would be a less efficient congressman if he reduced the number, and added to the population of his district.
 It is a mistaken notion of some, that a congressman is valuable to the extent of the time he puts in getting speeches in the Congressional Record. In fact the most valuable congressmen we have are those who get into the record only on roll call.
 As between a larger or a smaller membership in the house of representatives the larger one is preferable. This is a representative government and any attempt to centralize it and lessen its scope and breadth is to weaken it as a republic.

WE RISE TO SAY—
 Once more that nothing has been done for the girl who comes to be one of the great army engaged in bringing wealth and prosperity to Janesville.
 We ask the women of the city what they propose to do about it. On being asked concerning it one woman stated that an effort had been made two years ago to start a Y. W. C. A. here and had failed. No one seemed to be interested.
 That brings up another very pertinent matter. What happened two years ago, or ten or one, has little bearing on the situation in Janesville now. We will have to find out, and we may be shocked at the fact, when we have to confront it that Janesville is not living on what happened yesterday or today, but on what is going to happen tomorrow.
 Because something failed two years ago or last month is no sign it will not win now. And when able papers are read about "What to do with our Girls," and "How to keep Girls in the Straight and Narrow Path," etc., we will wonder if it is not a great waste of both time and writing paper.
 Organized, efficient effort, having as a result the provision of a club house for girls is a genuine necessity in Janesville. When will it be done?

GET READY FOR SPRING.
 Snow is going off the streets. Dead grass is showing through of the lawns. There is now and then a touch of spring in the air through the dying winter chill. It is as though some one had built a fire in a cold room and it fled out waiting another match. Every year the same thing happens. During the cold weather ashes accumulate in the yards, dirt and debris have a carnival in the streets, and the ugliest time of the year is upon us. These things should be given attention now. The work of cleaning should begin at once. "This is a dirty town," said a stranger who had come to Janesville to enter business, this week. To him the beauties of summer, the shaded streets in residence districts, the cleanliness of yards were nothing. He saw only the bedraggled and filthy snow and ice of the down town streets. A clean city is like a clean human being. No one would want to associate with a man or woman who was as badly dressed as East and West Milwaukee or Main streets. A little dressing up would do them good. The earlier the better.

LONG ON PROMISE, SHORT ON FULFILLMENT.
 Our several departments of the government are given to large noises and little performance. We had a great sensation about the arrest and probable deportation of Reds. Ellis Island was well-filled with these waiting members of the Radical revolutionist party. Now we are told that they have been let go on bail and it may be a long time before any will be deported, and probably never. So it has gone with the government's promise as to price investigation and arrest of so-called profiteers. Again promise and no action. Here, then, comes Maj. Daugherty, who is going to use the federal strong arm to strike terror to the whiskey and wine-makers, sellers and drinkers, of Iron county. He and it fizzled.
 There seems to be something constructively wrong with the top of the executive list. Or is it just a noise to fool the people.

It is about time Josephus Daniels did something to get back into the limelight, a position from which he was ousted by the sudden election of Mr. Lansing to the center of the stage, hunting for his hat.

Mr. Hoover's idea evidently is that after the conventions of both parties meet their platforms should be submitted to him. After carefully looking them over he will ask that the party which he prefers reconvene

Their Opinions

The only thing we feel sure of about any railroad bill that would be satisfactory is that it wouldn't let the trains run.—Milwaukee Journal.

One of the biggest lumber companies operating in this country has announced a reduction of prices ranging from 10 to 30 percent. Which does not seem to jibe with the claims of some other dealers who are insisting that prices are bound to go higher.—Oshkosh Northwestern.

Would there be much talk of intervention in Mexico if there was no oil to feed the flames?—Pittsburg Press.

Now and then the maker of an income tax return is surprised to learn that he is still that good at figures.—Detroit News.

Payment of the soldiers' bonus has been started by the state treasurer and this little recognition by Wisconsin for the valiant services rendered by its soldiers and sailors of the World war is indeed but slight recognition of the real debt of gratitude due the boys.—Fond du Lac Reporter.

The present congress does not seem to stand in very great awe of the railroad unions. At any rate it has passed the railroad legislation that they strenuously opposed and in spite of the announcement that congressmen who did not vote in accordance with the wishes of organized labor would have the united opposition of labor voters when it came to re-election.—Wausau Record-Herald.

Backward Glances

FORTY YEARS AGO
 Feb. 28, 1880.—The Forbes Dramatic company presented "Uncle Tom's Cabin" at the Opera House last night. A large audience attended the performance.—A. P. Bennett will sell his present building at auction about March 20. He is now starting the construction of his new building. He has concluded not to heat it by steam, the expense being too great.—The firm of Smith and Bostwick was organized 19 years ago today.

 Feb. 28, 1890.—The most severe snowstorm which has visited this part of the county since the memorable one of March 20, 1880, struck the city last night and is still continuing. No street cars are running.—The Farmer's society held the last meeting of their convention last night in the armory.

TWENTY YEARS AGO
 Feb. 28, 1900.—The local grocers put a large number of eggs into cold storage last summer, hoping to make good profits this winter, but they have been sadly disappointed for the market for eggs is now low.—W. F. Hayes was in Milwaukee yesterday, attending the convention of the State Opticians.

TEN YEARS AGO
 Feb. 28, 1910.—The first robin and bluebird of the season was seen today.—William Smith was re-elected president of the Rock County Bar association at their meeting last night. All the other officers were re-elected also.—A petition from residents of Cherry street for a sewer will be considered at the council meeting last night.

New York's Hello Trouble

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN, Director
 Janesville Daily Gazette Information Bureau,
 Washington, D. C.

New York, Feb. 28.—When one of the seven million people in New York City reads the New York Evening Post, the marvelous network which makes up the telephone system of the metropolis and tries to tag another particular individual in the great mass for a bit of talk, he is likely to have trouble. The infinitely complicated task of getting the people of America into a tight telephone communication is all gummed up and not working properly. Yesterday his accident, Father Knickerbocker is getting fussy about it.

N. Y. Good-Natured City
 New York is an extraordinarily good-natured city. Or, perhaps it is merely apathetic after long years of wearing adversity. Anyway, with such a large population, the burdens of a civic inefficiency which would not be tolerated by most American communities.
 Even Arctic explorers must have felt an overwhelming gust of pity for the city's recent plight when it suddenly became completely paralyzed by a foot of snow, which refused to melt, but New Yorkers endured the catastrophe with their usual stoical calm. Apparently they thought it only natural that a storm, the traces of which would have been quickly cleared away by a less lethargic municipality, should completely paralyze the transportation facilities of Manhattan for a whole week; cut off food supplies, and make walking to one's risk and a writer's a writer-climbing in the Alps.

Newspapers Are Unkind
 The newspapers are unkind things about the mayor, but for the most part, New York bore the loss of its motor cars, its horses, its time and its balance.
 Without a whimper, the city has for the past six months nobly endured the strain of a telephone service, which is not only one of the most encountered in most rural America, but which has taken the booty prize away from Europe. Telephoning in New York is a hazardous business, well-defined and painful stages, like pneumonia. It proceeds like this:

Line Is Always Busy
 Upon calling a number, the first place, you are invariably told that the line is busy. Then, if central cannot get rid of the caller, he is told that the person at the other end of the wire when, of course, you are cut off—for the first time. After that, you are cut off so frequently, with such delays on the part of the operator, that your conversation never gets beyond the stage of desperate "hello's." If it does, it is immediately interrupted by someone else on the same line, so that, after a fierce, unintelligible battle, you are usually compelled to hang up the receiver and seek, weeping and exhausted, to the floor.

No Rest for the Weary
 But if, by any chance, you are weary and decide to retire early, after a day of hard toll, or if there happens to be illness in your family, why then you are literally overwhelmed by the alertness and efficiency of the telephone service. In fact, the whole department will concentrate on your line to show you how well it works. It will try to get up to ask you if the service has improved, and after that it will call you frequently and loudly just to beg your pardon to tell you that some one else had been trying to get you, but had been discouraged.

For months, as has been said, New York has stood this sort of thing with dignity and tolerance. It has joked about it, and it has even tried to pretend that waiting for telephone service was good for the soul. But attention was directed to the beneficial repose to be gained from sitting with one's eyes closed while waiting for a call in telephone booth, while, not long ago, it was pointed out by some jolly soul that standing in a correct position while at the phone was a splendid form of exercise. There is a great hunt for for hobbies with which one may fill in these waits. The advertiser's bureau of mental calculations that will corrugate the cerebellum are reaping a consequent harvest.

Can't Get a Lift
 Apparently the telephone company is not able to make use of the very obvious fact that, by plugging a call properly, the first three dial numbers would be handled more economically than by making it necessary that it should be repeated.

Within the last couple of weeks New York has at last begun to demonstrate the well-known fact that the world will turn. It has turned on New York, and the city is now the full force of the blow but ponderous disapproval. The city is humming like a beehive with proposed remedies for the present abnormality. The city is now a beehive with proposed remedies for the present abnormality.

PERSONETTE
 JOHN OLIVER LA GORCE is a man of undeniable individuality in the matter of the telephone. He is all the world of allurements spread out before him, what do you suppose he selected as the special thing with which to make his field around when it was not otherwise occupied?

He selected shores. Shores are his diversions. He is always on his legs and examines them, triangulates them, traces their ancestry. He can tell you how old they are as just as a farmer can tell the age of a horse by looking at its teeth. He can tell you the reasons for the color of the hair on the ends of a shore just as a physiognomist can explain the wrinkles of thought on the brow of a man. He can follow the track of the wind with the waves of the sea, and weaves an alluring story of the work it has done in the continent building.

The unexpected results of indulgence in hobbies have often been noted but few are more surprising than that which came to John Oliver La Gorce. He kept talking and writing a bit on his hobby until, offhand he found himself a fellow of the Royal Geographic society, who had elected him one of the most exclusive organizations, a society into which but a few hundred people in the world have been elected.

To be sure John Oliver La Gorce was already something of a geographer aside from his studies of those striped waves beating on the shore. He had been one of the men who had grown up with the National Geographic society, who had helped to build it up from a small time it was a wee, scientific infant, till it became a towering giant of its tribe. He had been vice-director, and associate editor of its magazine.

Dr. La Gorce states that his ambition is to have a separate pair of suspenders for each pair of trousers, and a belt around the world.

Al. K. Hall has positioned the court for a soft drink name. "I got up at 6 o'clock this mornin', dressed, started a fire, got breakfast an' made a couple o' 'crochards an' was downtown at work by 7:30," said Miss Myrt Fash, today.

ON THE SPUR of the MOMENT

ROY E. MOULTON

We read with considerable approbation a cable dispatch from London to the effect that Queen Alexandra, Queen Mary and Queen Maud of Norway, as well as several princes and princesses, attended the coronation of King George V. The ball, honoring the servants, will be an annual affair. We are glad to see royalty get into good society once in a while. Personally, we always attend the functions given by our servants. The annual ball given by the servants of our household in Washington is quite an event, in a small way, of course. The servants always have a good caterer from the city and an orchestra. We consider it a privilege to dance with our cook, because she is discriminating, and when the wife gets a chance to dance with the butler she realizes that she is dancing with a man who owns several apartment houses and who, in a social way, is quite superior to our family.

It is quite astonishing how well-behaved the servants are at these affairs. They are all expert dancers and when the chaunters dance the fox trot with the wife's maid, they bend a wicked knee. It is really quite a pleasure to see so many old pensioners, who served us for years, come in and enjoy the sights of the ballroom. And we hear good gossip, old society stories which we have not heard in our own class in many moons. The butler has taught all our servants good English.

It is impossible to mingle socially with our superiors once in a while.

A RECIPE
 Lives of great men often remind us. Men can make their lives sublime, If they only think to get out of the cabinet in time.

Billy Sunday says he may be goaded into running for the presidency, but he doubts that very much. The salary rumors are at $75,000 a year. Mr. Sunday says he will accept the second place on the ticket, if Mr. Bryan will accept the first. The salary of the ambassador to Great Britain, Mr. W. H. Anderson of New York will be made ambassador to Great Britain. We have nothing to say in connection with Great Britain, but if we had we would say it would treat her jolly well and all right, don't you know.

An English medium says near-beer is popular in heaven. But not with that gang that goes to the other place.

A sense of humor is the spare tire attached to the human spirit to be used when the going is tough.

There are 17 candidates for the presidency of the United States. The probably reached there from this country.

Nicholas M. Butler would ship all the Reds in this country to the Philippines. Then, we would add, give the Philippines to Japan.

A British editor fears the United States will absorb Canada. He should know that would be illegal. There are many distillers in Canada, and we are not allowed to absorb anything that has booze in it.

ASK US
 Q. Have any countries that had food rationing during the war investigated its effect upon the health of their people? A. M. D.
 Q. Denko estimates that as a result of a system of compulsory rationing during the World war the death rate was reduced 34 percent. This decided reduction is attributed to the elimination of an over-consumption of fats by the population. Dr. Hindheide, the Danish food expert, says that a general rationing of food and other food, and that the continuance of a system of compulsory rationing will prevent persons from eating themselves to death.

ASK US
 Q. What is the origin of the expression "good-bye"? O. L.

The "Soulless Corporation"
 Because the Telephone Company is a corporation does not necessarily mean that it is without honor or the desire to deal fairly; that it is not as anxious as any other business enterprise to serve you satisfactorily, at a fair price, and to merit your good will.
 Corporations—even public service corporations—are simply associations of men and women, managed and operated by men and women, all of whom are just as human as men and women in other walks of life.
 These men and women who are the Telephone Company have every reason for trying their best to make their management and service acceptable to you—their places, pay and promotion depend upon just that thing!

Forget the "soulless corporation" when you think of the Telephone Company—think, instead, of the men and women who compose it. Give them at least "the benefit of the doubt."

"At Your Service"
Rock County Telephone Co.

YOUR SUIT
 It will give you longer service if you keep it in good repair, and in good appearance. Never let wear get the best of it. Occasional cleaning, pressing, renovating and repairing will double its period of wear. Mighty important these days of huge cost of apparel.

IS LEMON EXTRACT JUST AS EFFECTIVE, DEAR MR. HASKIN?

Don't ask the Gazette information bureau at Washington for a recipe for anything with a lemon in it, because, as you know, they're not telling how to concoct any such beverages. This is according to an answer given by a few days ago by a local man who appealed to the bureau for the secret on malt shrub.

Thirteen questions were answered by the bureau the week ending Thursday, Feb. 19. A citizen of Racine was furnished with a full account of the life of Hiram Johnson, senator from California. Another was told that it was just a matter of opinion whether the United States had reached a state of luxury in food previous to the war. Two Rockville school girls were furnished material for a debate on the peace treaty. A Chinese student who is seeking work during vacation, was told to whom he might apply for aid in securing a position this summer.

The income tax, which is a knotty problem to all, was solved for one young man who wished to know how much exemption a single man could claim. The answer was given by the bureau for his mother could claim.

Jones gave his farm of 80 acres to his son, and for $8,000, the agent to get his commission above that amount. The agent sells the farm for $3,200. The son doesn't think the broker is entitled to $1,200 for selling the property so he appealed to the bureau which returned the answer that the commission would depend entirely upon the agreement made between the broker and the farmer.

"LUCKY CHARLIE" MAY LOSE HIS WIFE

"Lucky Charlie" Weeghman, owner of many lunchrooms in Chicago and part owner of the Cubs' baseball team was married in 1899, and separated 1919. A number of years ago Weeghman was employed in old King's restaurant as a waiter. At that time he was married and in a short time he opened his first lunch room. Eventually he controlled a string of lunch rooms covering all sections of the loop. His success in business gained him the name of "Lucky Charlie."

Mrs. Weeghman was formerly a resident of Plattville.

MAYOR ENDORSES NATIONAL GUARD

"The national guard is one of the best things for the young men of the city that I know of and I welcome them to the city under my command to the city."

This statement was made by Mayor Thomas E. Welsh to Captain Charles W. Foster, chairman of the local company of the national guard of this city, when the $400 voted by the city council at its last meeting, toward the guard, was presented.

"Our country is greatly in need of some form of military instruction so we must not neglect in this same position of unpreparedness as we were in 1917 when war was declared against Germany. I would like to see the city drill into such an organization that it can well take the place of its noble predecessors, Company M, whose record in the war was good, and the old Bower City Guard."

Miss Jane Novak is going to have a birthday party on the 29th of this month. This young lady is a wife and mother. It will be just her sixth birthday. Yes, you've guessed it. This pleasing of a celebration of a feast day away from her home and her most wonderful birthday party in the world. Virginia Mita Newberg. Miss Novak is a real home woman although very young, being just six as the candles on her cake show.

There was a regular party at the studio recently and a Los Angeles caterer made the little cake and covered it with pink icing with "A Happy Birthday" in silver on the top. John Bowers decided that it should be Jane's and have six pink candles on it and now he seems to be anxious to try a piece of the sweet stuff himself.

JAPANESE STAR TO ORIENT

Tsuna Ooki is on her last picture under her present contract with Universal. She will sever connections with that company the first of April and will leave for a two months' tour of Japan, visiting relatives in Tokyo and Yokohama. On her return to this country Miss Ooki is to start work as the featured star of a specially organized company.

The above stunt created considerable interest at the recent annual horse show of the Denver, Colo., Country Club. The auto camouflaged somewhat as a "steed," with driver dressed as a jockey, ran up an incline, sailed over a hedge at an elevation of fifteen feet and landed on the decline. The driver had the jump figured mathematically. Going up the runway, twenty miles an hour, he spanned the gap and landed with the rear wheels at the edge of the landing.

As Mavis Hawn, Miss Pickford takes the part of a Kentucky mountain girl at war with certain factors which she knows nothing of and determined at least to put an end for all time to come to the whippings which her mother has been liberally inflicting.
A love tale is interwoven in the plot about a mountain feud of long standing and the story affords Miss Pickford ample opportunity to score such triumphs as characterized "Daddy Long Legs," and "The Hoodlum," her previous attractions from her own studios and releases through First National Exhibitors' Circuit.

SHAW WOULD KNOCK DOWN OLD COTTAGES

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

London. (By Mail)—George Bernard Shaw declares that the old cottages of England should be destroyed wholesale.
"After living in one of these literary and artistic houses with an exalted sense of doing the right thing," he told the Society of Arts recently, "one realizes that all the time one has been living in a sort of architectural hell."

"I am so far modern that I have come to the conclusion that what is wanted is a law that every building should be knocked down at the end of 20 years, and a new one erected. That would get rid of old cottages. We have got into the incorrigible habit of spending on the past."

"Every generation ought to be able to produce its own art and all this worship of the past can only be got rid of by a wholesale destruction of all the monuments of the past."

"If we could avoid the wholesale destruction of human beings involved

SIDE LIGHTS on the CIRCUS BUSINESS

By D. W. WATT
Former Manager Burr Robbins and Later Treasurer of Adah
Forepaugh Circuses

A few days ago a man asked me how it was with the wagon show that at all times of night for the next town. The first work I had to do after arriving in a town was to register the people at the hotel at the bottom of the page on the register. I would write, "Drive tonight is 25 miles, breakfast for 10 cents, and at the hotel at 2:30 o'clock." A night watchman would call everyone on the lot at 1 o'clock and in the hotel at 2:30 o'clock. He would see me to be up and dressing when the call came for he was not allowed to call but once.

The night watchman also had charge of the trunk wagon and people in the hotels were allowed their trunks twice a week and of course in the dressing room every day. While the watchman received a salary he was also allowed to charge the people at the hotel 50 cents a week for handling their trunks. While he was only allowed to call the people once, I never knew of any one getting left. On the lot they had 30 minutes for breakfast and 45 minutes after they were called at the hotel they must be out and ready to start for the next town.

Showing Out in Kansas
We were showing in a town out in Kansas and after the afternoon show a farmer who had quite a family said to me that he believed we would pass his place on our way to Abilene which was our next stand. When I asked him where he lived he told me that it was about eight miles on a straight road. His family of children commenced to dance around him as he was talking so he was up to see the show so by, but as it was a long drive and we had to pack up and breakfast as soon as the show was out in the evening, I told them that if they wanted to see the show go by, they'd better stay up as the first wagon would commence to pass there by 10 o'clock or shortly after.

Had Bonfire in Front Yard
A young man some 14 or 15 years old said that he would know when we got to his house for they would have a bonfire in the front yard. The cook tent was always the first ones into the next town and I was the last one out of a town, having to wait and settle the bills. I also had to pass the other wagons and be the first one into the next town. I stopped a minute at this farm house that night and the young man said that I had made a pretty good guess for it was just 5 minutes to 10 when the first wagons passed.

Robbins show was some sight for the inhabitants for it was the first circus to invade that part of the country and many times we were from 40 to 75 miles away from railroads. I doubt if there was ever a wagon show that had a better system in all departments than did this one.

Hours Story of Old Driver
The following story is the fate of an old driver whom I knew well 25 years ago was sent to me a few days ago. It tells the story of old Joe Campbell, whom I don't believe ever intended to harm any one.

"Old Joe" Campbell has heard the call each spring for the past five years, and each time the hope that some fortunate turn of fate would restore him to his beloved white tops has burned in his breast only to be shattered. Disappointed, disappointed, but still with a pitifully simple faith that some time the justice of his plea would prevail, he has turned back to his drab prison existence. And now a rift has appeared in the clouds.

"For 40 years Joe Campbell drove teams in the big circuses—Dunham & Bailey, Klingling Bros., Burroughs & Selts, and others. Many old timers know him well. He had a quarter in Philadelphia, and in defending himself, pushed the man, who fell down a stairway and sustained injuries from which he died. The old circus driver was sentenced to twelve years in the Eastern Penitentiary to his cell for the killing of a man. Warden McKenty says Campbell has been a model prisoner, and he believes his story that the killing for the Philadelphian, representative of the Philadelphian, with the approval of the Warden, wrote to the Billboard appealing to his old friends in the show business to help him obtain a parole. He is confident his letter will bring him a job, without which he could not obtain his release. He spent 40 years in the show business, and I want to do the job again and to see the kiddies at the show grounds.

"Are we going to see Old Joe's hopes shattered again? He's 66, his hair is silver and his face bears the marks of suffering. But if you could see the way his kindly face lights up when he looks at the prospect of getting back to his horses and the white tops—

"Old Joe" wants a job! He must have one! On the lot "We're waiting for your answer!"

Prohibition Works Wonder
Prohibition has worked wonders in the break and museum business here, as it has created a vacancy of some of the choice locations on the main thoroughfares. Several enterprising managers saw the opportunity of renting these buildings and once more revive the museum of old and new collection of freaks and curiosities. At the corner of St. Charles and Payday streets Rinalda's Wax Museum holds forth in a new building, once a saloon of prominence. At 205 St. Charles street, one of the best locations here, Frank Taylor opened up in the building once occupied by the De Luxe saloon, and as this was one of those palatial palaces of distasteful, with its ornate and magnificent interior, and could not be moved, Mr. Taylor solved the problem by erecting the stages directly over the bar. Can you imagine the sight that this presents to the patrons, who walk into one of these former home camps and plant their feet upon the brass rail and look at the freaks, who are exhibited on the bar, with a magnificent mirror back-ground? There said the fat woman and the waitress girl, with their peculiarities exhibited a thousandfold with the reflecting lights and brightly polished glass and mahogany. Where once the cash register, reposed at the man-woman looking down at the curiosity seekers as much as to say, "What will you please order?" particularly noticeable, and that is the unexpected patronage of ladies who had never been in a barroom. How they look with astonishment upon the magnificent surroundings, and for the first time in their lives see what the inside of a barroom is like. One incognito individual wandered into the museum and was just drunk enough to think he was in a real saloon. He walked around in a half-dazed condition, trying to get half-dressed to serve him a drink. He finally became disgusted at being ignored and ambled out of the swinging doors, remarking to the doorman: "That Lala Tookit may be a good bartender, but what they want with a gal without any apron back of that bar is more than I can understand."

Nevertheless, some use has been found for vacant saloons, and prohibition has put many a performer and curio-hall novelty to work this winter, who otherwise would have had to remain idle and want of a suitable place to exhibit.

New Orleans is one of the best show towns in the South, and now that Con T. Keltner has put in the new big winter quarters Kansas City had better look to her laurels. Besides, the climate is ideal for outdoor shows, and the many strange people kept going all winter, and February finds many of the larger tented shows opening their season.

DUCK HUNTING ON THE WING WITH A RIFLE

By Paul E. Page

(The first of Mr. Page's two articles appeared in the Gazette last Monday.)

Did you ever shoot ducks on the wing with a rifle? I have. Some shooting and some sport where the birds don't know what a gun or man is. I covered that Alberta lake with a .243 and got a bird. Sometimes a few times, I got a bird. I shot at, and several times one that got in the way that I did not shoot at. I did get into the wildfowl by corner glass with a big Canada honker. He came drifting down the lake and when opposite me a shot about 50 yards and 50 feet high. I cut into him. He staggered and fell a few feet, gathered himself and started directly away from me.

I shot again, and again he twisted and fell but gathered himself up and turned in and towards me and I missed by a round me and back up the lake. I got him on the turn with the third shot and he came down in a lump. I dressed him later and twisted and turned through his breast just below his neck, one through his back and out at the wishbone, and another through his body in front and close to his legs.

The next shot I doubled up a red-head and nearly landed him in the boat from a straight overhead at all of 60 yards.

I was sure some little shot just then. Later I changed my mind about it.

Once when a bunch of mallards swung into have a closer look at my bunch of outland decoys I got red-heads and close to the decoys of a flock, and these did not come in any too good, either.

It is amazing the amount of room there is around a big duck. I could pick out a certain feather on one of those big mallards and shoot at that one feather at 30 yards, and nothing doing. I might do the same thing at the next bird and get its partner flying several feet behind it and perhaps, but not often, I would get close to that particular feather that I would commence talking to myself and wondering how Dr. Page would sound.

Spatter Lead Over Landscape
While busy spattering lead over the landscape the beautiful trumpet call of a swan came to me and I felt the spellbound. Four of these great birds were coming into the lake from the south. They started my way and I dropped the rifle, no, not for the shot gun, but for the camera. On they came, whirled in behind me and started for the blind not four feet over the grass.

I twisted and turned and tried my best to get those birds in the flunder but could not do so, although they swung out over the clear water not 40 rods from me.

Got Plenty of Blanks
I fooled away for an hour or more trying my luck with ducks of all kinds and one splendid chance at a large flock of brant, but the best I got was some dots that looked like blanks.

If I ever hit that lake again I am going to have some kind of a camera that I can put at a bird and get results. I tired of the camera and took up the 22 again.

A great number of swan came into the lake and I shot at them. They evidently were coming in for water and for the night.

Sandhill Lit on Mud Bar
One bunch of sandhill crane came in and lit on a mud bar.

One big swan, I believe he would have measured nine feet from wing tip to wing tip, came by the blind on over 20 yards and less than that number of feet from the water. I covered him with the rifle and I know I could have hit the feather I aimed at and my finger itched to pull the trigger. The Alberta law says hands off of swan and crane, and it was hands off with me.

End to Everything
There is an end to everything and the end came for me when I ran out of 22 shells.

I shot 250 and got 14 ducks, and one goose. Not much of a record, and yet some record. Try it some time.

I picked up my ducks and poled to shore, where I was met by my host. He looked over my back-breaking load of ducks and geese. I don't remember of saying how many ducks I shot with the shot gun. He said, "If you want to get some good shooting try Buffalo lake. My brother lives there, and I will give you a note to him."

Some Good Duck Shooting!
Some good shooting! I wonder what his calls are good shooting. Two hundred and fifty picked shots at ducks not over 40 yards away, a few geese thrown in for good measure, not quite as many shots with a shot gun, and a hundred or more ducks shot at and flunked at with a camera is some little day's shooting.

If you have not already done so, try this rifle duck shooting some time when you get where ducks are tame. No use to try it on birds that have been shot at until they are wild as they jump too much, and when they do it is out of the question to get them covered; and when you do get a bird under such conditions you do not feel sure that you have done anything but a lucky fluke.

Run Over Best Dog
Hurray—my friends run over their best dog and put him in the dry dock for a weekend only got three sharpshooting.

I got back sharp in that bunch right now, and my map has moved up to the head of the class.

There were no "I told you so's" when I got back that same evening. (Copyright by W. C. Hazelton.)

FRENCH WAR BABIES BEAR UGLY NAMES

(By Associated Press.)
Paris, (By Mail).—Babies in France in war time or since have received many topical names, for the most part ugly and incongruous. An appeal has now been issued that this custom cease, and that the ordinary christian names, drawn from the Calendar of Saints, should once more become universal throughout the land. Among the names given to some of the unfortunate children born during the war, Joffrette and Joffrette are common. A father of Bordeaux was anxious to christen his daughter Ravanche and this name was also suggested by an inhabitant of Montreuil for his son. Place names, such as Namur, Liege, Le Mans, and Verdun, were also common. Verdun and Salonique are all now quite usual. As for the French and the Victorles, it should be difficult to count them. One father wanted to name his son Tintin, after one of the mascots, Nene and Rintintin, sold during the war. The registry clerk, luckily for the unfortunate child, refused to register such a name, as in France the only Christian names which are recognized by the law are those which appear in the Calendar of Saints. A campaign is now being organized for the strict enforcement of the law.

BETTER WAGES FOR BARBERS.

SALE OF THE "METEOR."
Paris.—According to a report from Zurich appearing in today's "Petit Journal," a Berlin sportsman has purchased the famous meteorite for two million francs ($400,000 at the present rate of exchange).

PITTSBURGH FAMILIES HAVE TO BUY OR MOVE

Pittsburgh, (By Mail).—More than 60,000 Pittsburgh families bought their homes during the past year, not because they were particularly anxious to own their own homes, but according to real estate men, they had to buy or move. This is continuing at the same rate thus far this year.

The home buying movement began two years ago when war activities in the mills brought scores of families into a community where housing accommodations had been increasingly scarce for a number of years. Cost of construction increased and this curtailed building operations. Rents have increased in proportion, small houses and apartments showing the highest percentage. Fifty percent rises for the coming year are said to be common, while in some instances 100 percent has been asked and paid where the occupant could afford it. "The demand is here and the living places are not" is the way one real estate man explained the situation.

Similar conditions prevail throughout the Pittsburgh district. In some manufacturing towns industrial corporations are building and buying houses for the men, while in Sharon, Pa., the Chamber of Commerce has undertaken to finance the construction of 500 residences.

Like a Graustark Romance

An heir to the throne of Roumania—a love affair with a girl beneath his royal rank—an elopement—

Sounds like a Graustark novel. Yet it isn't fiction. It's fact—the true story unearthed by a foreign correspondent of The Chicago Daily News of

The Elopement of Prince Carol of Roumania

Europe seethes with secret intrigues, but none so tinged with romance, so filled with thrills; as this story of the Roumanian prince and his elopement with "Zizi" as related by his companion who abetted the couple in their elopement and marriage.

A story of truth that is stranger than fiction:

PONTIAC BUILDS 1,700 HOUSES IN ONE YEAR

Charles Noyes, Former Local Man, Cites Michigan City Plan as Practicable Here.

How the city of Pontiac, Mich., met the housing situation last year by building 1,700 houses is described in an interesting article written by Charles L. Noyes, assistant managing director of the Pontiac Chamber of Commerce. Mr. Noyes, residing in Pontiac, is the office of the Samson tractor company here several weeks ago to go to the Michigan city.

He tells of the stirring building campaign which was launched and the methods of financing the work, citing the ideas as a possible remedy for Janesville's housing situation this year. He predicts trying times here unless some definite course of home construction is laid down and followed.

Four Big Plants
In speaking of the present status of Pontiac, he said:

"Pontiac is literally an industrial center. The main industries are the Oakland Motor Car company, employing 2,500 men; the General Motors Truck company, employing 1,000 men; the Illinois Tool Works company, employing 2,500 men; and the O. J. Beaudette company, employing 1,200 men. Pontiac has about 29 other factories, smaller in size, and all flourishing."

"The Board of Commerce has more than 1,000 members, and one of its live projects is a hotel proposition, to cost $1,500,000, has reached its final stage, and it is believed that construction will commence early this spring."

Data in Demand.
Following the Pontiac housing problem up to the end of the year, Mr. Noyes declares the plan met with such success as to demand the attention of scores of other cities. The prominent Poughkeepsie (N. Y.) business men made a personal investigation there to gather all data possible.

Mr. Noyes' article pertaining to housing follows:
"About a year ago Pontiac faced a real housing crisis. The city was crowded with industries and with no houses to care for the influx of people to its boundaries. Some industries were calling on the city through the Board of Commerce for houses, as almost every one of the plants was growing fast at the time or had laid plans for an immediate industrial expansion. The largest of these enterprises were spending great sums of money for industrial expansion and it was up to Pontiac to devise some means for housing the new people."

General Motors Builds 500.
The General Motors corporation took it upon itself to erect 500 houses commencing last summer, which was done. About the middle of July, manufacturers realized the housing problem was a city-wide one. It was then estimated that 1,400 houses, in addition to the number being erected by the General Motors corporation, would be needed at once. These 1,400 houses would scarcely care for the four largest industries alone, so that would not be enough."

"The housing committee of the Board of Commerce made a one-day survey of the city and counted the number of houses then under construction, which figured up to but 400. Immediately a housing committee was appointed to go ahead with plans to stimulate building throughout the city."

Pledges Are Secured.
"A Board of Commerce membership meeting was called, when plans for different sized houses and prices were submitted and exhibited. Ways of financing were explained. Manufacturers were again called upon for an estimate of the houses needed to meet the demand. At this meeting pledges were obtained at this session of the board membership for more than 600 houses, construction of all these to commence at once. These were many people in the city who were not at the meeting but who, in the minds of the committee in charge, could build houses, too, so it drives was made from a prospect list of 300 names. The results of this special drive, which lasted but one day, netted 200 additional pledges for houses, bringing the total to over 800 houses."

"Pontiac now adopted a slogan—'2,000 New Homes for Pontiac.' A committee, it will be remembered, a wide publicity campaign was put into motion and leaflets printed showing just how easy it was to build a home on little capital through the Mortgage Investment company and banks of the city."

How It Worked Out.
"But did the plan work out in fact? In less than three weeks after the first 800 had pledged themselves to build homes, contracts for nearly 500 houses. The plan had its effect in that many people who had never thought of building homes began as at present there were now putting their money into houses. The Mortgage Investment company, incorporated primarily for the purpose of financing these homes for the investors, had, after its first three months of existence, loaned money to 75 builders and had insured over $200,000 worth of new house contracts."

"Many will say this plan was patrolled on the part of the citizens who pledged to erect homes, but nevertheless it turned out to be a real investment, and the slogan adopted mentioned has now been changed to 'It Is Being Done.'"

Enthusiasm Contagious.
"The surprising thing to all who had anything to do with the campaign was the ease with which men could be induced to build when once the urgent necessity was presented to them and they saw how a building project could be financed through the banks and the Mortgage Investment company. Everyone seemed to catch the enthusiasm of the campaign and many who had never thought of the plan were signed up to build homes."

"Early last December the city government informed the Board of Commerce that 1,700 new homes had been erected the past year or were under construction at that time. This is evidence that the plan was a huge success. So unique was the idea that a group of prominent business men of Pontiac to study the problem and how it was solved."

"Knowing Janesville as I do, I can predict some trying times there with regard to housing while the city is attaining its growth or at least trying to keep ahead of itself and its industries. If the Samson Tractor company measures up to the expectations of the people of Janesville, that city can be content with keeping up with the growth of the community, to say nothing of keeping ahead of it.

"Pontiac at the present time is holding its own in housing matters. C. W. Otto, managing director of the Pontiac Board of Commerce, gets much the credit for inaugurating and carrying out the housing problem as it was carried on in Pontiac. Mr. Otto will be remembered as having added very materially in the organization of the Janesville Chamber of Commerce a year ago last summer."

NATTY OUTFIT FOR SPORTS WEAR NOW

By ELOISE.

For the girl who likes something just a bit different from the usual, many delightful sports outfits have been designed both for wear in the southern and northern spring. The Jersey suit is still one of the most popular and accepted styles for sport wear and next in order come the black and white checked velour with box pleatings combined with accented pleatings. The smart little coat is black velvet and features facings of the black and white material at the collar, pockets and cuffs.

Resume of Moving Picture Programs of Last Week

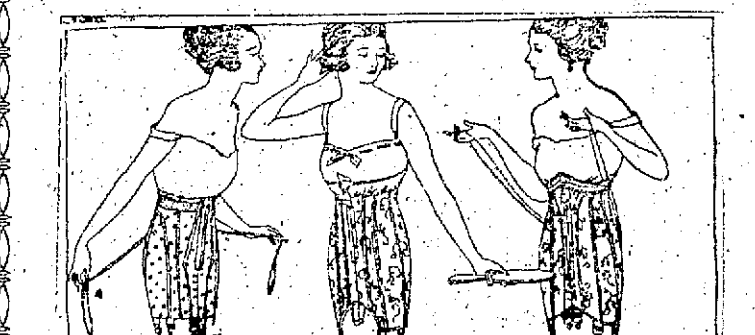

BY MRS. ABBIE HELMS.

Interesting pictures showing the vocational work for the rehabilitation of soldiers and sailors were shown at the theatre this past week. The work is financial and managed by the Elks and is a part of the war work done by them.

At the Apollo the main picture of the week was a character study by William Desmond entitled "The Day Old Dog." He depicts an average young man, verging toward middle life, who just as he has found the right girl is saddled with three old maid sisters by the death of his mother. The dying wish of his mother was that he must not marry until the girls are provided for, and his sweetheart gives him up finally. He marries another, and then his sisters marry and leave home. Years after he hears his mother because he seeks the trifling company of actresses. A pathetic meeting with his old sweetheart and with her viewing her boy departing with his company to France revives old memories and shows that his lovely hides an aching heart. The old maid sisters are especially well characterized.

Jack Gardner in the "Range Boss" was the Sunday attraction at the Majestic. He showed some of his riding and graceful western tricks as the range rider for Ruth King, the eastern girl who came west to manage a ranch. She and her lover are inexpressibly shocked by the crudities of the cowboy, and the latter in revenge for numerous slights from the range boss determines to do him up. Of course he is outwitted by the cleverness of Jack, and gets what is coming to him from the girl he has been courting on the sly. There is an ancient uncle and aunt in the war were put on at one of the theatres this past week. The work is financial and managed by the Elks and is a part of the war work done by them.

Aviator Falls 35,000 Feet and Lands Safely

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

DAYTON, O., Feb. 23.—Whirling over and over like a leaf in a gale; plunging to earth with the velocity of a rifle bullet; a flare of burning oxygen streaming behind him from his broken tank; with thousands on the ground watching what they believed was a flaming meteor; and with his eyeballs frozen beneath his rigid eyelids; Maj. Rudolph W. Schroeder, Chicago, Friday afternoon dropped from an official altitude record of 36,028 feet a distance of more than six miles, saving his life when within 2,000 feet of the earth only by semi-consciously grasping his control sticks and guiding his airplane into a long gliding sweep which landed him safely on the ground.

May Save Eyesight.
Maj. Schroeder is in the post hospital with army surgeons working over him in an effort to save his eyesight.

The officer is a test pilot at the aviation grounds. He announced that he was going out to break Roland Rohlf's height record of 31,000 feet, and his previous great flight served to draw out a crowd for the trial. The machine was a Le Prieux, equipped with a Moss supercharger. Schroeder left the ground in a short time disappeared straight into the air, beyond the reach of even the officers' glasses.

Reached Appalling Height

What transpired between the time the major's barograph reading showed he had passed the 31,000 foot record, and the moment he reached the appalling height of 37,000 feet has not yet been disclosed. The instrument showed that the aviator had actually attained that record, but the official mark is placed at 36,020 feet.

Suddenly a great shout was uttered by the throngs. Falling out of the cloudless blue was a tiny speck enveloped in a bluish blaze. Somewhere in that terrific cold—registered by the machine's thermometers as 55 below, centigrade, and 97 below, Fahrenheit—the gas tank had exploded, and the aviator, numb from his blindness and in a helpless stupor, had lost control of his burning plane.

Saved in Thrilling Moment.
While the crowds watched the "meteor" and wondered where Schroeder was, the major partially regained consciousness and managed to right his plane so that he could automatically collapse to earth.

Hangar attendants raced ahead of the crowd to the machine and extricated the flyer. He was hurried to the hospital.

The surgeons announced later to the waiting crowds that Maj. Schroeder would recover and that his vision probably would not be lost.

Winsted, Conn.—During the tolling of the Methodist church celebration of the inauguration of the prohibition amendment, a man passing along the street stopped and asked the sexton, "Is the funeral dirge for John Barleycorn?" he was informed.

WOMEN BAN SHORT HOURS.

New York.—Declining to work less hours a day than men in the same employment, the women employees in the offices of the Manhattan Borough president defeated a move to make their day end at 4 o'clock instead of 5.

Fifty women attended a meeting in the assembly room of the Borough president's department. Miss Harriet E. Porritt, secretary for Commissioner of Public Health, presided. The meeting resulted from a letter to Borough President Henry J. Curran asking him to shorten the day for women so they could avoid the traffic jam.

CHILD DEBT SLAVERY.

London.—Debt slavery, in which children are taken in pledge for what their parents owe, still exists in Hongkong, one of the unfederated Malay states under British protection, but is shortly to be abolished, according to T. L. Humphry, the British agent. The debt is treated as hereditary, the children are taken in pledge and no reduction is made in the debt on account of the labor of the debtor. The social, moral, and economic abuses of the system are notorious.

GRAIN

Chicago, Feb. 28.—(Unusual scarcity of corn here with the local market movement at an end and has given much impetus this week to price upticks in the corn market. Quotations this morning varied from the 40c to 42c advance, oats were unchanged to 3c higher, and provisions down 10c to 40c.

At times all other considerations in regard to corn were eclipsed by the fact that receipts continued scanty and that no big accumulation in Chicago or any of the leading terminals was now expected. Speculators who had sold corn heavily on account of weakness in sterling exchange and worrying opinions about the future economic outlook were forced to cover on a rising market. Withdrawal of an exchange rule that no individual interest in the market should exceed 200,000 bushels, failed to stop the advance, which was further emphasized by official reports of serious damage to winter wheat. Later, however, sounding of a reaction took place because of gossip that the upturn in values had perhaps been driven enough to dislodge rural holdings.

Data were governed by the action of corn.

Decreased employment at packing houses was apparently significant in the slow movement in provisions.

Chicago Review.
Chicago, Feb. 28.—Predictions of an improvement in traffic conditions after railroads are returned to private ownership counted somewhat today in weakening the corn market. Renewed attention was also given to reports that the government report on farm reserves would indicate a good surplus. Soiling, however, was only a scattered factor in the price movement, which varied from the same as yesterday's to 1 1/2c lower, with oats to 2 1/2c, and July 1 1/2c to 2 1/2c.

Provisions reflected the weakness of grain.

Month-end adjustment of trades led to a brisk rally near the finish. Prices were unsettled for the first time in 1 1/2c advance, with May 1 1/2c to 1 1/2c and July 1 1/2c to 1 1/2c.

HUSBAND OBJECTS TO WIFE TAKING PET LION TO BED

That her pet lion, "Tawny Pershing," has alienated the affections of his wife is the assertion of Herbert E. Cole of San Francisco. Mrs. Cole was formerly Betty McMillan of San Francisco. Cole was provost marshal of Frisco for a time. According to dispatches, Cole objected when Mrs. Cole finally decided to take Tawny to bed with her. Mrs. Cole says she fears that she will have to dispose of Tawny because she cannot buy food for him, but rather than part with him she will chloroform him and then kill herself. She alleges Cole will not provide for the animal.

Mrs. Herbert E. Cole astride "Tawny Pershing."

for to bring the Janesville crowds back. One half of the court will be reserved positively for the Bower city bunch.

While the team is on its way to Whiting, Ind., for one of its biggest games of the season against the Red Crowns tonight, attention of the Janesville crowd is directed to the Cards and Fairies clash for the fourth of the seven game series next Thursday night in the college gymnasium. At least 350 of them have set the evening aside to go south and holler for the home team.

The series now stands two to one in favor of the Cards. Every effort will be made by the Lakotas to make it three. On the other hand, the Fairies are seeking to tie the series. Both teams have been playing with all wins and no losses since the last game.

Thursday night will be Janesville night in Beloit. The Lakotas orchestra will journey to the Gateway city with the team for a big dance to be held after the game at Cosmo hall. Indications are that the evening will be one of the big ones in sports and social events of the year.

COURTESY HEAD OF EVANSVILLE MOOSE

Charles Courtes was elected dictator of the Moose lodge No. 1222 which was organized at Evansville last evening. Other officers are: Fred Graves, vice dictator; Chris Christensen, past dictator; W. J. Stewart, prelate; J. H. Shekels, secretary; M. S. Fendler, treasurer; Fred Depold, inner sentinel; Joseph Cronk, Joseph Connors, and Dr. R. Schuster, trustees.

Sixty members were initiated by drill team and officers of lodge No. 1451, Madison.

Moose from this city who accompanied the visiting brothers are: Murphy, N. Tomlinson, H. J. Easton, J. Kenna and D. G. Reese.

The Madison drum corps accompanied the visiting brothers from that city. James Geraghty, Milwaukee, supreme officer and J. P. Corley, Rockford, district organizer, assisted in the work of initiation. After the business meeting a supper was served.

Lakotas will hold their semi-monthly meeting in the club-rooms at 8 o'clock Monday evening. Chet Juc-Denning will serve a buffet lunch at 10 o'clock.

SAVES CHUM'S LIFE AND GETS A MEDAL

Lady Amphill has been twice rewarded for her services in England's behalf during the war. For her activities among the homefolk of the soldiers she was made a member of the newly formed Order of the British Empire. For her work among the wounded Indian soldiers she was decorated with the Order of the Crown of India.

Six churches, the Baptist, Christian, Lutheran, and United Brethren have united in support of the school of methods and principles which are being taught in the afternoon, continuing until Friday evening. The purpose of the school is the making of more efficient leaders in Sunday school work.

Attendance cards have been sent out to all Sunday school teachers and field workers in the city with the various subjects which are to be offered. Given under the auspices of the Rock County School association the best possible authorities on the school materials have been secured to teach. Among the teachers are Miss M. L. Bailey and J. L. Rogers of the state association; Rev. Perry Miller, Fern, P. J. Lowth, Mrs. C. E. Ewing, E. A. Finn, secretary of the county association and the Misses Ella Jacobson and Marie Dobson.

Monday and Tuesday school will be in session at the Methodist church, Wednesday and Thursday at the Baptist and Friday at the Presbyterian church. Classes each day begin at 4 o'clock in the afternoon and run until 7:30 o'clock in the evening.

Art and Economy in Home Building No. 41

Plan submitted by the National Builders' Bureau, Spokane, Wash.

More Than a House-- a Real Home

This five-room house is of unpretentious design, without ornaments, yet it is very pretty. It has an appealing "homey" look.

This plan is designed particularly for a corner lot, but it can be used effectively for any location. It has a frontage of 38 feet, not including the projection of 8 feet for the kitchen porch and 6 feet 4 inches on the front porch. It has a depth of 27 feet, not including the 8-foot 4-inch porch. There is a full basement and arrangement for heating plant.

Ninety-nine people out of a hundred in looking at this plan would say: "That's the very house I want!"

The merchants on this page will cooperate with you in every way possible--They will take care of your home problems--and are ready to serve you at all times.
